Little did they know that one day they might become more than 'just' friends.

It all started when they went on that fateful expedition to Siberia.

Once upon a time, Alex and Bella were colleagues and friends.

Rarely do you hear such a thrilling tale of love and bravery.

Only after surviving an emergency landing and spending a cold bitter night wrapped in each others' arms did they finally realise their love for one another.

Let's raise our glasses to this extraordinary couple, Alex and Bella!

No sooner had they set out in their helicopter, than they encountered mechanical problems.

Never could I have imagined such headstrong and stubborn people falling so helplessly in love. But never could anyone have predicted such a dramatic turn of events.

Hello everyone, and welcome to Karl and Karen's wedding reception. My name is Henry and it's my great honor and pleasure to act as best man today.

I have never seen a relationship start as badly as Karen and Karl's – spilling your drink on your future bride is hardly a good start, is it? Destiny, though, is a strange mistress: if he hadn't tripped on the carpet that day, they would perhaps have never met, and we wouldn't be here toasting their good health.

Karl showed his gentlemanly side and offered to clean Karen's dress – Karen settled for a dinner in the most expensive restaurant in town, and they didn't know, as they had that first dinner together, that they would return there two years later to get married.

The story of Karl's proposal is also of interest. When Karl uttered the words 'Will you marry me?' Karen collapsed in shock, hitting her head in the process! After a short trip to the hospital, she tearfully and gratefully accepted his proposal.

So, here's to our accident-prone couple. I have never met such a disastrous pair, but I have never met two people so much in love. Congratulations and all the best for the future. Here's to the happy couple, Karen and Karl!
