1. Course Director: Thanks for coming in Cara. I've just been looking through your personal statement. First off I have to say, this diploma requires a lot of extra work on evenings and weekends, and I see here you already have a full-time day job. Have you dealt with this kind of stress before?

2. Cara: Definitely, and I would say I'm very hardworking, which you can see from my college years, when I had a part-time job at the same time I studied for my Bachelor's degree. It was tough, but I found that by creating a plan I could get everything done. And after I graduated, I continued this habit.

3. Course Director: Good to hear. And going back to studies – you say your major was in accounting?

4. Cara: That's right.

5. Course Director: I'm curious – how do you feel you'll manage in a more creative field like fashion marketing?

6. Cara: Mm, I mean, I have been involved in marketing before. In college I did some work for the student newspaper, and this helped me to become more creative because I had to find new ways to appeal to students – you know, really think about what the younger generations of students want and how we could catch their attention.

7. Course Director: Well it does sound like you work hard. And I see you put down 'motivated' as another of your personal qualities. Can you tell me why you're motivated to do this diploma?

8. Cara: Sure. Well, in the last few years I've been developing a fashion-related e-business. Basically, I design my own clothes and sell them online. The problem is there are so many other companies like mine – it's been hard to set myself apart. I think that dealing with these difficulties has made me quite motivated to take fashion marketing seriously.

9. Course Director: Okay, and finally, can I ask you about...
