

Some bank robbers have taken more than fifty people hostage and have already shot and killed the manager. They are demanding safe passage within the hour or they will kill another hostage for every minute they are delayed. Tactical police have surrounded the building, sealing all exits.

A depressed woman is standing on the edge of the top floor of a thirty storey building with her two month old baby and two year old son. She is threatening to jump if anyone tries to stop her and is holding a large knife to her neck. The children are both crying, but appear to be otherwise in good health.

Hundreds of teenage prisoners have escaped from a suburban juvenile correctional facility and are causing trouble across town. Residents are reporting widespread theft and assault. Police are absolutely overwhelmed and unable to contain the situation.

Several large and powerful mutant dinosaurs have escaped from a secret government laboratory and are heading straight for a major city of 25 million people. They are killing anyone and anything in their path and will likely enter the city within fifteen minutes.

A huge asteroid is headed for Earth and will arrive in a matter of hours. People are panicking and rioting on the streets, burning cars and throwing rocks at the police. Major military powers have launched nuclear weapons at the asteroid but this seems to have had no effect on the trajectory of the asteroid.

A rogue government has created a robotic army and is preparing to invade your country. The robots think together as one and are armed with machine guns and grenades. The robots are protected by 3cm thick titanium steel plating and can move across land and sea at a speed of 45km/hour.